SDG 4 – 4.3.1

DMIHER(DU) provide free access to educational resources for those not studying at the university

DMIHER provides free access to a variety of educational resources and training programs for the general public. Through the School of Virtual Learning, DMIHER offers training courses, and a Medicamp is available as a summer program specifically for school children. The university also opens up its campus facilities, including a Museum, SVL, and a Herbal Garden, for free educational access, along with offering yoga training sessions for public benefit. DMIHER extends its educational outreach online by providing free access to E-content resources, an E-library, and YouTube channels dedicated to educational resources. Specialized repositories such as the National Repository for Panchyagavya Ayurved Chikitsa and Shodhganga, a digital collection of Indian theses and dissertations, are also accessible to the public, supporting a wide range of learning needs beyond the university community.
