DMIHER(DU) host events at university that are open to the general public

DMIHER (Deemed University) is committed to the concept of Lifelong Learning and actively organizes various initiatives open to the general public to foster education beyond the classroom. These include community educational events, public lectures, and professional development programs that target a wide range of audiences, including professionals from various fields. Through these programs, participants gain valuable knowledge and skills, which they, in turn, apply in service to the community. Notable examples include life-saving training sessions, such as CPR and Basic Life Support (BLS) workshops for the general public, as well as collaborative activities with organizations like Girl Up. These initiatives reflect DMIHER's dedication to community engagement and its mission to contribute positively to society by empowering individuals with practical skills and knowledge.
